

THE DAILY HERALD.

"FIRST OF ALL, THE NEWS."

ISSUED EVERY DAY EXCEPT SUNDAY

JESSE Q. WHEELER, Editor and Prop

Entered at the Postoffice, Brownsville, Texas, as second-class matter.

SATURDAY, August 20, 1892.

PERHAPS the third party may be satisfied if they are allowed a third of the offices.

THE Galveston News says no set of men can cover all the democracy in this country.

CROW is a dish which tickles the palate of the man who watches his opponent partake of it.

It is to be feared the contest between the two democratic factions may yet have a Kilkeppie termination.

SINCE the drought is broken and the grass has gotten a good start, cattle shipments from Southwest Texas are growing light.

WE inadvertently omitted to credit the editorial, "A Queer Lot," clipped from the Houston Post, which we copied yesterday.

THE News says: "Sometimes a partisan gets so hot under his brass collar that he melts it." A little less brass would not help some partisans.

NONE of the delegates are reported as asking "Where am I at?" There is no doubt, however, that many of them would find it hard to answer the question.

AN UNKNOWN quantity is represented by an X. Mr. Harrison will prefix one to his title after November as a token that he will hereafter be unknown in national politics.

WONDER how President Harrison will feel next November when he will have to make room on the back seat of the carriage for Cleveland to drive down Pennsylvania avenue with him.

WHAT are the two great parties waiting for? Each seems to be waiting for the other to make the first move. If this is to be a campaign of education, it is time the teachers were on the rostrum.

THE farmers are in a covey assembled at Austin. Should think they would not attempt to meet which so large a contingent of their forers are at Houston to play their little Hogg Nugent game.

Hogg's followers have a little over two months in which to flatter themselves that victory will be theirs, and after that they will have time for retrospection, and can calculate as to where they let their foot slip.

TEXAS will be represented at the World's fair, and her exhibition will be a credit to the state, but no thanks will be due to her men. No, it is the women of the state who have gone to the rescue and taken the matter in hand. It is the women of the state who will have erected a handsome building on the grounds and make all arrangements for a creditable display of our resources. All praise to the noble women of the state.

It is not time for a silver scare yet. Read the following from the Houston Post: "When the gentleman who had a million dollars' worth of Uncle Sam's silver certificates walked up to the counter and asked for the redemption of his certificates in gold the promptness with which the treasurer responded to his demand must have taken his breath away. It is said the demand was made to determine whether the government would pay out gold in redemption of silver certificates and the gentleman had his curiosity entirely satisfied. Uncle Sam is able to redeem every treasury note he has issued upon demand, and he would just as soon pay in gold as in anything else. Uncle Sam has got the stuff."

WHILE the Hogg and Clark factions are fighting for supremacy and allowing the third party in Texas to draw from the ranks of both, gaining strength every day, Senator Mills is exerting his powers to draw democrats to a closer allegiance to their party, by expounding the principles of true democracy. It is well he has appeared on the scene to put a check on the third party, for Texas democrats seem to have forgotten its existence, and it has been rapidly gaining strength.

THE San Antonio Express says the happy man in these days of strikes is the country editor, who is his own compositor, foreman, pressman and devil. In his case a strike is impossible. There is, however, one drawback to his happiness--there is no one for him to blame for anything that goes wrong. It is a great relief to feel that some one else is to blame for errors in the paper.

THERE seems to be something wrong with the mails somewhere. We have received none of our weekly exchange in several days, and the Laredo Times and News do not come regularly. The Caller also is absent from our exchange table today. Where the trouble lies, is what we should like to know.

THE portrait of our "Jeems" occupies a prominent position in the picture gallery at Wednesday's Post over the words "Jim Wells is prepared for the campaign." Mr. Wells is in Houston to recruit Cameron's vote with the true democracy of Texas for Geo. Clark.

A FEW more scenes like those at Homestead and those of more recent date at Buffalo, and the word "strike" will soon become synonymous with anarchy.

SPEAKING of the mining troubles in Tennessee, the Houston Post says: "sistdz egitfildiceva Hflewor tmh htmra." We are not surprised that the troops were ordered out, if this describes the existing state of affairs.

GALVESTON NEWS: The falling off in assessed valuations over Texas as proves that the state has been going backwards for almost two years. This is a fact, in the face of the truth that we have had excellent crops and good health. Governor Hogg is in the way.

THE Houston wigwam should have been constructed like the Chicago wigwam, with a perforated roof. Then by means of the Post's influence with the weather clerk, a few showers might have cooled down a little of the superabundant enthusiasm of the delegates.

SENATOR MILLS addressed an audience of 5000 people at Waxahachie last Monday. He paid the third party the following compliment: "and then there is another party, too young yet to wear a name. It is undergoing the teething process. This stage makes children fretful, but it makes this child sing."

THE Post says the only way the chairman could preserve his face was to turn it from the audience and gaze upon the back wall when ever a particularly hot shot was being poured into him. Some of those whom the Post's artist has attempted to immortalize should have preserved their faces in a similar manner.

ON the free coinage question, Mr. Mills says that until gold and silver can be at an exact and proper ratio, the country will always be troubled with fluctuation. He also says that the democratic party has all along championed free coinage, and that it will still be guarding that principle after the third party has followed its predecessors up the golden stairs.

United States Marshal Paul Fricke arrived here last evening from his extended scouting trip through the border counties. He was constantly in the saddle for several days and states that he did not discover any evidences of the revolutionists who were reported as being in that section. There have been bountiful rains throughout that portion of the state, and farmers are preparing to put in a fall corn crop.--San Antonio Express.
